Two away games this weekend for the two local high schools has presented a passive picture for many fans who will be unable to accompany the Washington-Lee Generals to Portsmouth for tonight's 8 o'clock encounter with Woodrow Wilson High School, or to Falls Church tomorrow at 2 p.m. when the Wakefield Warriors will be kicking off with the Falls Church Jaguars.

While Washington-Lee is traveling Southeastward today for its tilt with Portsmouth, the Generals' opposition for next week, the Mt. Vernon Majors are trying to even off their won and lost record to an even 2-2 mark by trekking Southwestward to Charlottesville for a game with Lane High.

The Generals' subsequent opponents for Friday, October 22, Bladensburg High School, will be playing Washington-Lee victims from last week, the Gonzaga Eagles, in another game tonight to be played on the Northwestern High School gridiron.

Thomas Jefferson High School of Richmond which the Generals will meet here three weeks hence, is visiting nearby Alexandria tonight for a feature game against the George Washington High School Presidents. Neither school has met defeat to date with the Prexies sporting three big wins and the visitors from Richmond with two straight wins under their belts.

Hampton High School which the Generals meet down-State on Friday, Nov. 12, will be playing host to the neighboring Fairfax Rebels tonight at Hampton. Since Washington-Lee has already disposed of Fairfax in its opening game by a decisive 26-7 score, local fans will be drawing comparative scores for the first time after tonight's game as Hampton tries to break into the win column following two straight losses.

George Washington High School, the Generals' Turkey Day opponent, already mentioned as under observation from the standpoint of tonight's results against Thomas Jefferson, could well be furnishing the key game for much of the Virginia High School League Group I competition.

Wakefield High School, now with two wins and a loss for the 1954 season to date, is likewise carefully watching the results of its other future opponents.

Once past Falls Church tomorrow afternoon, Wakefield will have to contend with Garfield High School from Occoquan which has apparently been rounding into shape with a recent 14-0 win over Marshall High School of Fredericksburg after having dropping a 34-6 contest to the Washington-Lee Junior Varsity.

Herndon High School which the Warriors will meet two weeks from tomorrow, is meeting Garfield this afternoon at Herndon which may give Warrior coach Tank Johnson some more lowdown on what to expect during the next several weeks.

The George Washington Junior Varsity which Wakefield will meet on Friday, October 29, opened its schedule just yesterday afternoon by dropping a 14-6 decision to the twice-victorious Washington-Lee Junior Varsity with whom the Warriors conclude their 1954 season on Thursday, November 11.

Wakefield's other opponent for Friday, November 5, will be Mt. Vernon, whom both the Generals and the Warriors will be noticing down in Charlottesville tonight against Lane High School, as previously indicated.
